PRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 12.

ER.—The necessity for laves on the banks of the Mississippi is created in part by the deposit in the bed of the river of immense quantities of casts. As the bottom of the river rises, the quantity of water which overflows the banks increases. And inasmuch as these deposits must increase in quantity. these deposits must increase in quantity in proportion as the bed of the river is raised and the speed of the current reduced, it follows that the lavees must year after year be raised higher. More over, the quantity of water which runs off immediately after a rain become greater year by year as the country is cleared and the logs, leaves, brush, &c. moved which retard its flow. The Northwest is being cleared up at a rapid rate. Year after year, then, the river will have to be raised for any other reason. When they shall have to a cortain height it will be nesseary to build leaves at many points. Northwest is being cleared up at a rapid rise higher and higher. So that the le-vees will have to be raised for an-other resport. When they shall have reached a certain height it will be nereached a certain height it will be ne-cessary to build leves at many points along the river where there are none now. And so on perpetually. Left aloue, the river would change its channel and deposit its contents first in one place and then in another; but confined to one bed it must in the course of a thousand years or so be-come quite an elevated stream. The bed of Cheat river in West Virginia is hundreds of feet higher than the Val-ley river, which runs in the same genley river, which runs in the same gen-eral direction, only a few miles dis-tant. But Cheat river has levees built from Washington, says that "Mrs. Saulabury appealed personally to Senstors not to press the resolution expell-ing her husband, promising to take him home to Delaware." No man could resist such an appeal. It is impossible to think of such an incident without to think of such an incident without emotion. Mr. Saulsbury is a man of very marked shillies,—one of the ablest, most cogent and effective speakers in the Sena e, of fine personal ap-pearance, tall, erect, dark complexion pearance, tall, erect, dark complexion, with piereding black eyes and jet black hair, courtly and impressive in his manner, and of able and generous impulses. But for the disease which afflicts and overmasters him, he would be one of the most influential public men of the Senate and the country. Yet he is saved from ignominious expulsion only by the sympathy felt for his noble and devoted wife. Another Senator, whose term ted wife. Another Senator, whose term has just expired,—a man of clear in-tellect, finished culture and fuscinating tellect, finished culture and fascinating manners, but cursed by the same affliction, was tolerated in the Senate only from a similar motive. One of the most touching sights to be seen in Washington during the session was the presence in the gallery of his wife and daughter, waiting night after night, often till long past midnight, and distressed, to accompany him to their home. It may be said to his credit that, whatever he may have been to the rest of the world, he was never anything but respectful, obedient and tender to them.

THE Evening Gazette, in a dispatch

THE BANKRUPT LAW.

Recommendation and Nomination o Registers in Bankruptcy. WASHINGTON, April 8.

WASHINGTON, April 8.

By direction of the Chief Justice, the following statement is published for information:

1. Under the act of Congress, the power of appointing Registers in Bankruptcy is vested in the District Courts of the United States, the Supreme Courts of the Territories, and the Supreme Courts of the Territories, and the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; but no person can be appointed who is not a counselor-at-law.

2. The duty of recommending and nominating to the District Courts, and other Courts mentioned in the act, suitable persons for appointment, is imposed on the Chief-Justice of the United Stases, and Congress having now adjourned without acting upon the bill introduced into the Senate to repeal this provision, he will proceed to carry

Several vejiant officers set diligently to work to find and follow up whatever clue might be possible. Their efforts failed for so long a time that people had begun to believe that no trace of the reministation would ever be found. There is a probability now that people had begun to believe that no trace of the reministation. Ever since the perpetration of the murder, Alderuman Strain, of this city, and his police officers, Hague, Wilmot and Brown, have been working up the case, and it is to be hoped that it has progressed so far as to be ultimately successful. The full particulars of the visit of the three cattle dealers were obtained. These searches and inquiries, added to the known movements of certain well known characters, convinced the officers of justice that some of the miscreants of this city had a hand in the affair. Investigation strengthened this suspicion until it amounted to almost a moral certainty, and an information was made before Alderman Strain, charging Samuel Eggleston, John Young, Thomas Whittaker and John Bird with the perpetration of the crime. Everything being arranged, a descent was made on Monday night on that well known resort, the "Irwin House," where it was expected to capture several, who, at least, had some knowledge of the transaction. Unfortunately the descent was a failure to a certain extent, as there were none of the parties arrested but Bird. On Tuesday, however, Whittaker was caught on Fifth street, near Wood, and committed to jail to await a hearing. While Bird was in the lock-up on Monday night, Alderman Strain held a conversation with him. During the conversation the prisoner showed signs of considerable alarm, and finally acknowledged that he knew something of the affair, but positively denied any participation in the crime. He says the whole thing rus, an interesting young lady, of Salem, Ohio, fell a victim to petroleum oil last week. She poured the oil upon a fire she was kindling and the can exploded, burning her so badly as to cause death in a few hours. She was eighteen years of age. Another sad

He says the whole thing was concoted in Jall; that among the prisoners there was a man who knew. Sproull and the vicinity where he resided, and who said that a good thing could be made there. After the release of the parties from Jall, Bird says, the final arrangements were made at the Irwin House, and from here the party started to execute the plan. Bird says he did not go with them, but this declaration will do him but little good, if the rest of his statement is true. Active pursuit is being made after the other participants in the crime. John Bird, the first one arrested, is a well known Pittsburgh thief, and a graduate of the Penitentiary. The other, Thomas Whittaker, is a well known character and desperate man. During the war he was a noted bounty jumper, and it is said was at one time sentenced to be shot.

Eggleston is a notorious individual, having served two terms in the Penitentiary. He worked in this city for years, but makes his home in Washington county, near the scene of the murdet, and was consequently well known to the deceased.
